Alexander Hamilton was the first secretary of the treasury under the Constitution. Q. What kind of wood resists decay the longest underground? V. O. A. The forest products laboratory says that osage orange and black locust are the most durable woods which grow in commercial quantities in the United States and can be expected to resist decay in the ground longer than other native species. These woods are not plentiful, however, and are not available in sufficient quantities to be widely used, so woods like the cedars, cypress, and redwood are commonly used where resistance to decay is desired. Woods of low durability can be made durable by preservative treatment with coal tar creosote. An effective treatment of this kind will make quick rotting woods last as long as longer than the most durable woods can be expected to last without treatment. Q. With what European countries has the United States no diplomatic relations? J. V. H. A. The United States has no diplomatic relations with the following countries: Soviet Russia, Abyssinia and Iraq. There is a number of smaller principalities which the United States does not recognize. There is a high commission at Constantinople. Turkey, under the supervision of Rear Admiral Bristow.
