WEST SIDE SENIOR HIGH SITE BOUGHT

Board Pays $30,000 For 20 Acres In Third Avenue At Fifteenth Street; To Be Used In Few Years.

Negotiations have been completed by the board of education for the purchase of twenty acres of land in Third avenue west, between Fifteenth and Seventeenth streets, for the contemplated erection of a west side high school. The amount paid was $30,000, or $1,500 an acre. Authority for the purchase was given President Fred Luburger at an executive meeting of the board last Tuesday. The negotiations were completed Saturday. The deal marks the climax of a series of negotiations which have been in progress for about seven months. Numerous properties were considered, but because of the high prices asked in each case, the matter did not develop rapidly until the last few months. The land finally decided on was owned by F. I. Russell, Iowa City manager of the New Process Laundry company and by the Wenig estate, represented by Ernest Wenig, 1955 B avenue. A. F. Dotson represented both in the transaction. First Price $44,000. The owners had originally asked $44,000, but this the board insisted, was too high a price. Later this was lowered to $40,000 by the owners, but the board held out for $30,000 or $1,500 an acre. Three appraisals were made, the highest being the Cedar Rapids Real Estate board committee set the value at $26,000; a committee appointed by Mr. Russell named it worth $34,000, and a third committee considered it in the way of judgment, insight, foresight, information, and ability to win the interest, enthusiasm, and loyalty of men. ## LUNCHEON SANDWICHES

Sandwiches of generous proportions are different from our usual tid-bit idea of sandwiches, yet the former, are coming to have a prominent place in the so-called business luncheon. Perhaps some of the suggestions below will help induce your husband to eat his business luncheon at home. Good sandwiches depend on a few things that any of us can do and do well. Use good bread, and slice it neither too thick nor too thin. But for both slices for any sandwich, be sure to use the best of all extra moisture before using. In fact, all ingredients should not be so moist as to make the sandwich soggy. This applies particularly to the dressing used. Season liberally with salt, pepper or paprika. When the slices of bread are placed together, trim off the crust sparingly, leaving the sandwich in a clean-cut, square shape. The bread should be cut on one of the diagonals and served cold. Or it may be placed below a broiler flame just before ready to serve, and delicately browned on both sides. A few oiled, or a sweet pickle as a tasty addition to any sandwich, either hot or cold. For filling, try a crisp lettuce leaf, cold sliced chicken, a strip of two of bacon, a slice of tomato and some creamy mayonnaise. Hard cooked eggs, minced, a thin slice of cold ham, a leaf of crisp lettuce, some shredded sweet peppers, a slice of cold ham, a leaf of crisp lettuce, some shredded sweet peppers, a slice of cold ham, a leaf of crisp lettuce, some shredded sweet peppers. A thin slice of cold roast pork, or thinly sliced cooked sausage meat, a crisp lettuce leaf, and a few thin slices of tomato. Dip the lettuce with a creamy dressing will combine with most any filling. Here are some new sandwiches: HOT HAM SANDWICHES—Minced cold ham, which is over ham including some fat. Season one cup of this meat with one or two teaspoons of prepared mustard. Spread on slices of buttered bread, which has been dipped in milk, the ham, and then the mustard. Cover each with a slice of buttered bread, press firmly together, trim off the crusts, and cut into oblongs or squares. Dip the sandwiches in a mixture consisting of one slightly beaten egg, one cup of milk, one-half teaspoon of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Saute quickly in butter. Dip the sandwiches in the egg mixture, and then in the breadcrumb mixture. Fry in hot oil, and serve on a hot plate. These are delicious with tomato sauce poured over them. CONCORDIA SANDWICHES—To one-half pound of finely minced, cooked hamburger, or roast beef, add one-half cup of highly seasoned tomato sauce to moisten. Mix thoroughly. Spread the bread, cover, to make a sandwich, trim shape and dip in the egg mixture used in the recipe given above. Saute quickly, arrange on a hot plate with a border of hot peas and carrots and serve. These are delicious with tomato sauce poured over them.

BOY THOUGHT DEAD HEARS BURIAL PLAN

Kentucky Youth Powerless To Warn Parents He Still Lives; Fears Being Entombed; Is Saved.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., March 9.—Roscoe Qualls, 9-year-old son of Lonnie Qualls, yesterday had literally come back from the valley of death. For hours his parents and other relatives believed him dead. Their grief was piteous. Then certain arrangements to be made for burial were discussed. All this time the boy lay in his bed listening, to all intents and purposes a corpse, yet with his brain keenly alive to all that was going on. He heard every word of the arrangements being made. He feared burial alive, but he could not move a muscle of his body, wink an eye or twitch a lip. He could not do anything to show that he still lived. Of course, a physician's examination would have shown that the boy was alive, but this was not made during the time the child listened to tenderly expressed grief of his parents, and the arrangements for his own funeral. Roscoe Qualls, who lives near the Diney school house in this county, while skating on a pond at his father's farm, fell striking his head. He went to school, but became ill there. Paralysis soon set in and it was found he had concussion of the brain and he lost the power of speech. Physicians kept him alive by the use of liquid food, but finally this failed to improve him, and when his physician was absent, his parents believed death had come. Roscoe says his greatest dread while he lay helpless, listening to the discussion of his own death was that he would be buried alive. He realized he could not lift even a finger to show he still lived. When all had seemed lost to the boy, an examination was made and he was found to be still breathing. Doctors ministered to him and soon afterward the lad was sitting up. Today he was well on the way to recovery and his mental faculties are not impaired, by his experience.
