

THOUGHTFUL ACTS MARK MOTHER'S DAY

Wearing Of Flowers And Giving Of Gifts Express Love For Her; More General Observance Here.

Her hands have much of the delicate touch of a child's, her smile on one of her cheeks, her eyes, hair, a halo rare, on her head, her voice, sound, her dear face lined, but kind, her mind, of women, best, an loveliest.

The words of this poetic portrait of "Mother," by Ethel Romig Fuller, found a wordless echo in the hearts of Cedar Rapids folk Sunday. As the poet expressed her tribute in rhythm, gifts given, the simple, thoughtful acts which marked it as her day.

The queen of the home, whose scepter is unselfish love, found herself enthroned and crowned by her subjects, the sometimes heedless.

To the mothers of the red flower, many flowers were given. For the mothers of the white flower, many a mound was spread with a blossomy blanket.

The day was perfect for the observance, crisp and cool, with its threatening clouds of the mid-morning clearing to reveal a sky of May's most luminous blue. The white and purple lilac bushes, the tulip beds lifting their many colored cups, tall and stately, the flowering bushes all yielded their treasures for home and altar. Even the roses here and there, impatient for June, offered a few buds for Mother's day. And for those who sought more formal flowers, the florist shops were stocked with varieties of roses, sweet peas, snapdragons and potted plants.

Churches Observe Day.

The churches were made especially lovely with flowers, and here the silent tribute of the blossoms were added in song and sermon. In the Shrine of Motherhood, "Mother o' Mine," "His Mother," "An Imperishable Influence," were some of the sermon themes which suggested the trend of the day's messages.

Without losing its purely sentimental significance, it was more than ever noticeable this year, that the observance of Mother's day is taking a practical trend. The demand for flowers and greetings cards was great. But many who found it not within their purse's reach to spend much money for these things, brought such useful gifts as handkerchiefs, hose, lingerie for their mothers. Books, also, were favorites.

It was also noted that the day is gradually becoming more general in its observance. Cards were available not only to the one mother, but to "The Mother of my Friend," "To a Young Mother," and to the mother-in-law, and these were widely purchased.

TWO MOTOR CARS ON FIRE, LITTLE DAMAGE

Extinguishing fires in two motor cars and on a roof constituted the recent activities of the fire department.

At 11:00 a. m. yesterday, the firemen were called to the Rock Island bridge southwest of the city, where a car owned by W. E. Volz caught fire and the cushions and top were burned, causing a damage estimated at $150.

George Starman, 322 Fifth avenue west, summoned the fire department Saturday night when a short circuit in the parking light set fire to his car. The damage was slight.

Damage estimated at $5 was done to the roof on the home of V. T. Jollenbeck, 117 North street, west, at 8:44 a. m. today when a spark from the chimney ignited the shingles.

CANNON BALL BAKER AND CAR HERE TODAY

Cannon Ball Baker, chief test pilot of the Rickenbacker Motor company of Detroit, will arrive here today, with his record breaking Six Rickenbacker test car. Mr. Baker will remain for one day, making his headquarters at the sales rooms of the Borchel Motor company, where the car will be on display.

The car that Mr. Baker is driving holds the coast to coast record, from New York to Los Angeles in the month of January, seventy-one hours, thirty-three minutes, actual driving time. And then this driver went after and got the most coveted record on the Pacific coast. This is what is known as the "Three Flags Record," Vancouver, B. C. to Tia Juana, Mexico, 1,568 miles, and Rickenbacker covered the distance in forty hours, fifty-seven minutes, total elapsed time. As a climax to his activities on the Pacific coast, Mr. Baker clipped eighteen minutes and fifty seconds from the best previous record, between San Francisco and Los Angeles, annexing the greatest road record in the world.

Flunk Day At Coe Leaves Profs Idle And Students Free

Professors took a back seat at Coe today.

Their students didn't even venture near their pet classrooms and early this morning most of the instructors gave it up as a bad job, hung their pedantic dignity on the walls of their offices and repaired to their homes.

Posters, said to have been distributed at daylight this morning, were pasted on windows and sidewalks to drive off scores of students coming for early class.

By 10 a. m. the campus was deserted except for several custodians sweeping out, and a wandering professor here and there.

The students had taken to the river for an all-day outing, some going up to High Rock and others to the Pallasades. Ed Sheffie's boat house had been sold out for weeks and canoes were at a premium this morning. Most of the Coe professors were reported beating carpets and performing other sundry tasks incidental to housecleaning.

Flunk day is a tradition at Coe college but the exact date is known only to the student council whose members prepared the flunking posters and pasted them up this morning. The faculty and administration recognize the holiday and no cuts are given out.

Today's posters were in the form of a play cast written by "Ben Putnam," and including numerous jibes at campus life.

The big question around the campus the last few days has been as to the number of engagements which would be effected on Flunk day. Fraternity pin transfers in previous years have come thick and fast on this all-day outing and campus sheikhs and shebas are predicting a record breaker for Dan Cupid today.

D. J. Murphy Called Insane; Northeast Iowans Skeptical

WAUKON, May 11.—Dennis J. Murphy, Allamakee county lawyer and financier, has been adjudged insane and ordered to the state hospital at Independence, County Clerk W. S. Shafer received the order late Saturday.

Murphy was to have gone on trial at Cresco, Howard county, on May 18, on one of fourteen indictments charging embezzlement, returned against him by grand jury here last January.

The declaring of Murphy insane probably writes him as far as court charges are concerned on a case that was bidding for the greatest prominence of any in the history of northeast Iowa. At least it means delay.

The declaring of Murphy insane caused wide comment in the entire northeast Iowa sector today. People here are skeptical of the insanity verdict. Feeling is at a great pitch for almost all residents in this sector express themselves in favor of prosecution.

Murphy's alleged speculations and business deals are known to total several hundred thousand dollars, while it is generally believed here that the figure will reach $1,500,000. The courts of Allamakee county are cluttered with suits resulting from Murphy's business and subsequent collapse.

BIG AUDIENCE HEARS DR. FRANK B. RILEY

Seeing America First Promotes Citizenship, Says Portland Rotarian In Talk At Westminster.

Horace Greeley's advice to go west was placed in the form of a cordial invitation, last night by Dr. Frank Branch Riley at the Westminster Presbyterian church, in a travelogue on "God's Outdoors."

Dr. Riley came to Cedar Rapids under the auspices of the Rotary club and was greeted here by an audience that filled every seat in the church.

"Why do the highbrows spend their wealth to go abroad when God has given America the most beautiful scenery in the world?" asked Dr. Riley.

"To see America first makes us better citizens," continued the speaker, "because to know her better is to love her better and to love her better is to serve her better."

"What Can You Do?"

"In the east where universities rub elbows, they ask you 'What do you know?' In the south they ask you, 'Who are you?' In Chicago they ask you, 'How much have you got?' In the west we ask you 'What can you do?'"

"Since time began, civilization has been moving west," said Dr. Riley. He lauded the covered wagon day pioneers who discovered the only territory Uncle Sam did not have to take by conquest or purchase.

"Good roads are the slogan of the west," the speaker explained. "We learned long ago that only the rich can afford poor roads."

He illustrated this point by showing on the screen scene after scene of the ribbons of concrete which wind for miles and miles through the mountains and along the Pacific.

Pictures of the great forests in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia, where stands the last of the mighty pines and where one-fifth of the world's lumber supply remains, were shown during the lecture.

Mountain streams where trout are hungry for the fish; valleys where mountain flowers provide beds for campers; beautiful sunsets and glorious dawns were included in what Dr. Riley termed the playground of America and God's outdoors.

Inspires Motorists.

He explained that the national forests of Oregon are the inheritance of all the citizens of the United States and urged Cedar Rapids folk to motor there to see the wonders of the country.

Dr. Riley was born in Osceola, but now lives in Portland. He is a member of the Portland Rotary club and the Oregon Bar association. He just has completed a lecture tour of the east.

Part of the program consisted of two songs, commemorating Mother's day, sung by two quartets consisting of Blanche Snouffer, Josephine Reddie, Edith Michener and Catherine.

M. G. Heath Suffers Gash On Head When Struck By Car Here

M. G. Heath, living in Westwood addition, suffered a gash on the back of his head, but escaped major injuries, when he was struck yesterday when he was struck by an automobile and hurled fifteen feet as he started to walk across E avenue west, in front of the Jackson store, at No. 102.

Mr. Heath had been driving west and stopped his car on the right hand side of the street. He got out and started over to the store. There were a number of cars coming from the ball park and he was watching them so did not see the westbound automobile that struck him.

He obtained the license number of the car as 3-15298, he told the police, but said the driver of the car was not seen. He looked around and then drove on without ascertaining how serious the accident might be.

CATTY-CORNER PLACING IS NEARLY ALWAYS BAD

By MARIAN MOORE.

Often the best way of telling a person how to do a thing is to tell how not to do it. For now I want to call your attention to this picture which shows you how to arrange your chifftone or your dressing table or any piece of furniture except an armchair, a chaise longue, or a grand piano. This "catty-corner" position is a relic, I'm sorry to say, of the times when a false idea of coziness meant an awful conglomeration of gawgaws and knick-knacks piled all over every piece of furniture that could possibly have a "catty-corner" position. Now we know, thank heaven, that coziness is achieved by a more restful arrangement of the furniture and by the judicious use of color, along with one enough accessories to display their own colorful beauty and the less colorful attractiveness of their surroundings.

You wouldn't think of chopping off the corners of the room of your house as you are building; neither should you chop them off and spoil them with furniture placed directly across the corner. Moreover, the room tends to seem smaller with its furniture taking the "catty-corner" location, and it is seldom that we have rooms so large that we think we must do something strategic to make them appear smaller.

But the main error of this arrangement is what I have said before, and what I want to emphasize, and that is that the architectural value of the room is ruined.

Vauclain To Fall Off Water Wagon, Saves His Money

ATLANTIC CITY, May 11.—(AP) Samuel Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive works, looked out toward beleaguered rum row yesterday and spoke of the fact that the agreement he made last year about drinking will be a thing of the past in just one week.

In Texas on May 18, 1924, Mr. Vauclain made a pledge with two officials of his company in which he agreed to forfeit $10,000 if he violated the prohibition laws for the period of one year. The others were to pay $1,000 if they broke the liquor laws in that period.

On May 18 Mr. Vauclain will celebrate both his seventieth birthday anniversary and the completion of his pledge.

"Am going off the water wagon on Monday night," he said. "Well, I might. With this rum row business it looks as if it were going to be pretty hard to get a drink."

"But I am coming to New York for my birthday and I dare say I shall find a drop left there."

Crime Not Abolished By Leaving It Off Page One Of Papers

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., May 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Charles M. Dickinson, president of the New York State Federation of Women's clubs, in an address officially opening "Better Homes" week here last night declared that crime is not abolished by removing accounts of it from the front page to the tenth page of a newspaper, nor is it eliminated by reducing the headlines. Mrs. Dickinson explained efforts of the federation seeking a more conservative style of journalism.

"While such an effort is commendable," she said, "it does not reach the cause of crime." She attributed growing crime to moral laziness in the home.
